THE STATE FAIR.

Citizens of Fairfield. The Columbia correspondent of the News and Courier of the 14th inst., says of the big day at the State Fair: The big day of the Fair has come in having been verified and sworn to accordtruth, and the prediction of success for the week have been fully verified. This morning the weather was no less perfect than it has been for weeks in Columbia, and the city braced itself to meet the long-expected rush of visitors. Main street had been watered until it was muddy and the dust, our only trouble, had been eliminated. But so constant was the rush of travel along the thoroughfare and so general was the sun, that noon had hardly passed before the air was hazy with dust. In Both boards of Commissioners of the evening, indeed the dust was fearful, but there was no help for it, as the street was too full of dashing carriages and hacks to allow sprinkling to be prosecuted.

Thousands of people poured in on the morning trains, and the majority made little stop but dashed off for the Fair grounds. Early in the day thousands on foot and in hacks swarmed in the direction of the Fair. So great was the throng that it was found necessary to admit many hundreds by other en trances than the registering turnstiles, vet at noon the turnstiles showed 3,000 admissions. There was little abatement of the rush for hours after. The grounds were black with people moving in all directions and see everything which could be seen outdoors. Be sides, the new main building was at times jammed. Its balconies contained a thousand people listening to Reeves's Band, and machinery hall had Reeves's Band, and machinery hall had by bond of the purchaser and mortgage of all it could accommodate.
